Student Council And Scarlet Key Society Elected Yesterday — Take Office In January — Polls Kept Busy During The Day — Faculty Of Dentistry Voted One Hundred Per Cent

IN SPITE of the cold weather yesterday, students were not deterred from casting votes for their representatives to the Students' Council and the Scarlet Key Society. The elections were closely contested in most faculties. The following students were elected to represent their faculty on the Students' Executive Council: Gerald Garcelon, Medicine; Philip Glinick, Dentistry (Acclamation); David L. Gales, Law; J. R. Houghton, Engineering; Arnold Johnson, Arts and Science (Acclamation); Walter Markham, Commerce; J. K. McKensie, Theology (Acclamation); Deborah M. Barbour, R.V.C.

Results of Group "A"

In the Faculty of Medicine the following students were returned to Group "A" of the Scarlet Key Society by acclamation: Donald S. Fleming, Robert G. Freeman, H. P. Lyon, and H. E. McHugh. In addition G. S. MacDonald, the candidate from Architecture, was elected by acclamation. The following students were successful in being voted members of Group "A" of the Scarlet Key: John Van Vleet, John M. Charnard, Dentistry; George S. Challes, C. G. Quinlan, Law; S. V. Gisdale, C. V. Smith, J. W. Swift, J. H. Taylor, Engineering; Alex Gordon, Preston Robb, Austin Detmers, Louis Johnson, Arts and Science; J. Brodie, K. L. Daddon, R. McLernon, Commerce.

The following candidates were successful in elections for Group "B" of the Scarlet Key Society: G. McKensie, John R. L. Denton, Medicine; L. M. Fabbro, Architecture; K. S. Crawford, A. M. Hutchinson, Engineering; John MacDonald, Douglas McKensie, Arts and Science; R. MacDuff, C. N. Turner, Commerce.

Elections Enthusiastic

The elections turned out in full force to vote for their favorite candidates. The Faculty of Dentistry voted one hundred per cent while Law was a close second, ninety-one per cent of its students casting votes. Seventy-two per cent of the future Engineers cast their ballots while fifty-six of the Commerce students were politically inclined. Only forty-one per cent of the Faculty of Arts and Science cast votes and the odds were easily lacking in interest, only thirty-eight per cent of them coming to the polls.

Many of the elections were hotly contested and the votes were divided very evenly between the candidates in most cases. Much interest was evoked

Botanist Speaks On Carnivorous Plants

Biological Society Holds Special Meeting Tomorrow Night

A special meeting of the Biological Society has been called for this Thursday night, when Professor F. E. Lloyd, chairman of the Biological Building, will speak on "Carnivorous Plants." This meeting will be held in Room 250 of the Biological Building, and all interested are invited to attend.

Dr. Lloyd will outline some of the most recent work which has been done on carnivorous plants, and will illustrate his talk with several reels of moving-pictures which he himself has made. This is the first time that the film is being shown at the University, though it was used last summer at a meeting of the British Association in England.

This is Dr. Lloyd's first address at the University since his return from abroad. Last summer he visited many centres of learning both in England and on the Continent, and lectured at practically all the English universities. He also, presided over the botany section at the British Association meeting.

Funeral Pictures

Pictures of the Gun Carriage and Military Mourners at Sir Arthur Currie's funeral, which are posted on the notice boards in the Union in the Engineering building and in Bell Gentlemen's office may be obtained by signing lists near the photos and calling for them at the offices in these buildings. The price is 50 cents unmounted and one dollar mounted.

Another feature will be the singing of selected sea-shanties. Refreshments will also be served.

Lewis Discusses Students' Relations To Government

McGill Graduate Praised By Sir Antony Jenkinson In Article

"THERE is a boy speaking regularly in the Union just now who will be famous before very long, although being a Canadian, we may not hear so much about him over here. His name is David Lewis, and he is a Socialist. For sheer brilliance as a speaker he has no equal in Oxford, except for the President of the Union, Mr. Michael Foot, about whom I have written before."

This was said of the speaker at the meeting of the McGill Labor Club last night in McGill Union in "Oxford and Cambridge" for November, 1933, of David Lewis by Sir Antony Jenkinson in an article entitled "Oxford Comments."

Rhodes Scholar

David Lewis needs no introduction to McGill students. A graduate of McGill, he received a Rhodes Scholarship in 1932, and at present attends Oxford University where he is studying law. As a student here he was active in debating circles, beside being a former editor of the McGillian and president of the Labor Club.

Last night he addressed the Labor Club on the topic, "The Role of the

Professor Latham Discusses Modern Literature Today

The English Literature Society will hold its final meeting before college closes for the Christmas holidays at 3:45 this afternoon in the Union Grill Room. Professor G. W. Latham, who is Honorary President of the society, will be the guest speaker at this meeting. His subject is to be "The Academic Study of Contemporary Literature."

The purpose of Professor Latham's treatment of this subject is to obtain for his hearers an approach to modern literature. This subject should have especial interest for students; honoring in English, owing to the fact that a new course on contemporary literature has been added to the department of English this year. Everyone interested is invited to attend. Professor Latham hopes that there will be a discussion after the meeting.

Position Of Jewish Authors In German Literature Analysed

Miss Bertha Meyer Addressed Audience At Shaar Hashomayim

WRITERS EXILED

Declared By Nazi Regime As Deteriorating Influence On German Culture

Reviewing extensively the position of the Jew in modern German Literature, Miss Bertha Meyer, of the Department of Germanic Languages, addressed an audience last night at the Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue on "The Jew in Modern German Literature." This address constituted the fifth of a series of lectures on the "Jew in Germany," sponsored by the adult section of the Institute of Jewish Studies.

Before dealing with the intended German-Jewish authors and their works, Miss Meyer cited various quotations from the works of the German critic, Adolph Bartels, illustrating the attitude of the present Nazi regime towards German authors of Jewish origin. This critic holds that such contributions to German literature are not only worthless in themselves, but rather are of a decadent and deteriorating influence. The speaker, throughout her lecture, made references to this critic and his comments on the specific authors in question.

Most Popular Novelist

The most popular until very recently, and probably the most important, of German novelists according to the lecturer, is Jacob Wasserman. He serves as an excellent example of the troubled Jew, who combines Oriental sorrow with Western culture. This is especially manifested in his work "My Way as German and Jew" first published in 1921, and only very recently translated into English. Wasserman sought for a rebirth, a rejuvenation of mankind in general, and in this way hoped that a solution of the Jewish problem would naturally find itself.

The gospel of Franz Werfel, the great novelist and dramatist, is that individualism is dying out and that only humanitarianism remains. The aim of humanity is an endeavor to overcome the disharmony within itself. Jewish critics, according to Miss Meyer, have tried to identify this concept with that of the universality of Judaism, but the speaker could find no definite reason for believing this to be so.

Outstanding Biographers

Among the biographers, the most outstanding are Emil Ludwig and Stefan Zweig. The former made much greater use of German personalities than the latter having written on three most famous ones, Blomberg, Goethe and Wagner. Zweig, on the other hand, seemed more concerned with figures beyond the German borders, having written excellent treatises on Romain Rolland, Marie Antoinette, Dostoevsky, Dickens and Balzac.

Nearest to the Jewish cause were Lion Feuchtwanger and Arnold Zweig. In such books as "Success," "Power" and "Josephus," the former asserts his Jewish consciousness in his very characteristically bold and tempestuous manner. The author of "The Case of Sergeant Grischka" reveals in many of his works a profound sympathy towards

Scholarship Granted To Chinese Student

Pearl Wu Gets Award Of Chinese Government

Miss Chang-chi Pearl Wu, of Tatung, Anhwei, China, partial student in arts at McGill University, has been awarded a Chinese Government scholarship entitling her to continue her studies at McGill for a further period of four years. It was announced at the university yesterday. Miss Wu, who is specializing in sociology, is the first Chinese student to obtain a scholarship for study in the Province of Quebec and also the first from her native province of Anhwei to secure a Chinese Government scholarship tenable in Canada.

She came to McGill over a year ago after having been principal of the Singapore Junior High School for Chinese Girls. Besides pursuing her studies in the department of sociology, Miss Wu has delivered extension lectures under the auspices of the department of Chinese studies. Last year she conducted a course for the department of extra-mural relations teaching Cantonese how to speak the Mandarin language, national language of China. She is the only Chinese living in the Province of Quebec whose native tongue is Mandarin.

Psychologically Fit Employees Chosen In Many Industries

Dr. N. W. Morton Spoke On Industrial Psychology Last Night

EFFICIENCY RAISED

Intelligence And Physical Fitness Necessary For Good Workmen

"Only during the last twenty years has the importance of the human element in trade been recognized," stated Dr. N. W. Morton last night in the Arts Building in his lecture on "Industrial Psychology." All the work in the world may be done by machine, but there is a man behind every machine, and every one is potential material for the study of Industrial Psychology. Particulars must be found out about human skill, and the interest of the man in his work; investigation into the workings of industrial direction is also necessary.

There is a study called "Industrial Engineering" which is different from "Industrial Psychology" in that its object is "efficiency," while that of the last-named is to make satisfied workers, affirming that this would tend to greater efficiency of output in the end. Industrial psychologists declare that the efficiency of the worker cannot be benefited by the direct and impersonal means which the industrial engineers use.

Three foundations

There were three foundations for the rise of Industrial Psychology. The first was the need for rapid production. Industrial Engineering grew as first. In the 'nineties Frederick W. Taylor developed a system whereby the workers in the Bethlehem steel works could carry "pigs" of iron hot and forth with greater speed, and continued this sort of thing until the efficiency of the whole factory was raised. The whole doctrine of the movement is expressed in this phrase: "One best way."

Another foundation was the need for betterment of the workers' condition. Factories were generally improved until finally many industries instituted "personnel" systems.

Academic Psychology

The third foundation was the beginning of academic psychology dating from 1880. At Munsterberg a study was made of proper selection of employees, working conditions, and consumer's demands. During the war the American Army chose its officers on a psychological basis with great success. (continued on page four)

Band To Perform

Will Be Heard At Yale Game

On Friday of this week when McGill encounters Yale at the Forum the band will be in attendance. Bandmen are asked to be at the Forum not later than eight o'clock. Uniform will consist of band sweaters and caps. This will be the Band's first appearance at the Forum this year and it is hoped that there will be a good showing. Appearances will also be made at the Harvard game and at several other games after the holidays.

The Musical Association Concert which is usually held in the second week of December has been postponed until after mid-term examinations in January in order to co-operate with the other groups of the Association. Consequently there will be no practice on Thursday, this week, but on Saturday a full turn-out is expected in the hall-room at two o'clock.

Carol Practice

Would YOU not care to attend the Carol Practice this evening in Divinity Hall in order that you may become familiar with the carols to be sung next Sunday evening at the Carol Service. You will enjoy learning them for some of the most beautiful carols are not known to everyone, and you will enjoy singing them at the service because they will be sung in a delightful Christmas-y atmosphere created by the Candles.

You are not only welcome to the practices but you are urged to attend. The service is next Sunday evening at nine in Divinity Hall as the time for practice is short. A large attendance is hoped for this evening then, in Divinity Hall at seven-thirty.

Philosophical Society

The next meeting of the Philosophical Society will be this Thursday evening at 8:00 in Strathcona Hall. The speaker, who will be Professor C. E. Kellogg will introduce the subject "The Nature of Beauty." This is the second of a series of talks on "Aesthetics;" there are two shelves of books on the subject in the library for those who are interested. Refreshments will be served and anyone interested is invited to attend.

Alarm Clock

The next issue of the Alarm Clock will be coming out during the first week of the second term, and contributions from undergraduates will be particularly welcome. Poetry or short articles from about 700-800 words on economic or political topics are desired. They must be in before the end of this term, and can be left with the Editor or sent to Strathcona Hall.

"Rope"

TOMORROW NIGHT the Players' Club are presenting their first major production of the year, in the form of a play by Patrick Hamilton entitled "Rope." From the varied publicity which has graced their campaign to date we are led to suppose that the production is of high worth, and by reason of its subject matter, murder, is attractive to all. This is of course a matter of conjecture, and we await the first performance to comment on that score.

The Players' Club has been with us for a considerable time and during its varied history has produced some worthy plays, and also some palpable failures. What the box-office returns are at the present time we do not know, nor are we much interested. We consider, however, that this play is more attractive to the students at large, and for that reason should prove more successful than some of the enigmas presented to us before now. It is also an accepted fact that the amusement and theatrical business in particular have made great improvements in the past few months. Here it should prove no exception.

The Players' Club, for all the criticism levelled against it, is at least one of the more active organizations on this campus and should be rewarded accordingly. We wish the Players' Club success in every way in its current production.

The Carnegie Library

LAST year the Carnegie Corporation granted McGill University the sum of $15,000.00 for the purchase of special books for the Library in order to encourage undergraduates to do more general reading. This was welcomed by the authorities and they set to work with a zest to carry the conditions of the grant. They converted the reading room of the Arts Building into a special library over the summer and by the beginning of the session had a number of excellent books on all subjects ready for those interested. Good books are being received daily and the library has now reached fair proportion and promises to continue to improve as time goes on.

The Freshman Reading Book has been transferred to this library so that there is a combination of the two libraries to save space. The unfortunate feature of the affair is after all this trouble and expenditure the older undergraduates (juniors and seniors) are not making use of the library as they should. Freshmen are always present which is of course due to the fact that Freshmen Readings are in the same room. The Senior students however, rarely appear as may be seen from the register. This is really to be deplored. It is surprising that students who are expected to be interested in subjects of a general nature, do not trouble themselves to take advantage of such a golden opportunity.

The books in the Library cover a wide range. A visit there will convince one immediately that there are excellent books of modern science, fiction, poetry, history, biography, economics and art. The books are of such a nature that they are sure to satisfy even the most fastidious reader. The authorities have gone to great trouble to procure this grant for McGill and have carefully selected the books and it is an act of ingratitude on every student's part if he does not make use of these exceptional facilities.

The Elections

REGARDLESS of the fact that a sign was chalked up on a blackboard opposite the entrance of the Arts Building, and that full publicity had been given to the elections in the Daily, the Faculty of Arts and Science polled a mere 41% in the elections yesterday, with Commerce a little ahead with 56%. To climax the matter a freshman was heard to remark after all was over that "he hadn't even heard that there were any elections!" The Royal Victoria polled a paltry 38%, a figure which we cannot attempt to explain. The other faculties lift the veil of gloom a little by their unusually large attendance at the polls. But with regard to the former, we can only view the situation with disgust.

Panegyricus

By McParlfootin'
How Do They Do It?

After more than two years of careful perusal of editorial Number Two in the Daily, we are left to wonder where on earth the writers get their vast store of experience and erudition. Every conceivable topic comes under the despotism of their facile pens. Nothing escapes their penetrating gaze. Day after day, with unfailing regularity, the students are regaled with little moral lessons, with sage advice, and with useful counsel as to what every young man of fourteen should know. Deadheads, Lynchings, Fests, Exhortations and Denunciations, vague platitudes and shadowy vices all receive their due recognition here.

Our unusually analytic and statistical mind determined to discover for the edification of the student body in general, what is required to make up a good Second Editorial. Our results were highly enlightening. Such an effort must:— (a) say nothing in particular (b) have nothing to do with anything in particular (c) be reasonably vague (d) have a proper moral attached to it (e) be capable of being clipped by another college journal (f) — this is important — fill space.

It must not: (a) be pertinent, (b) deal with controversial topics (c) hurt anybody's feelings (d) use obscene words — such as "eugenics" — (e) convey immoral ideas (f) question the efficacy of anything whose efficacy is to be questioned (g) use words under four syllables.

We must add, at this point, that in this field we have a remarkable training ground for embryonic Addison's, as well as wide scope in the field of self expression. But who cares?

What, You Too?

Fairly recently, that excellent periodical, the New York Nation published in symposium form, the statements of eminent modern men on letters on the topic, "Books We Have Never Read." We of course have no desire to expose our own ignorance, are prepared to make no such confessions. However, we are bold enough to announce hear, a list of books which we wish we had never read. It would be extremely interesting to find out the general consensus of student opinion on this topic. We therefore propose to run a contest of this nature. A dollar-bill must accompany each entry. To the winner of this contest, we shall donate the magnificent reward of an autograph photograph of yours truly. Here is our own contribution. We fervently wish that we had never read:

- (a) % of the Frost readings.
- (b) Gide, Lowell et al.
- (c) Locke, Berkeley, Hume
- (d) H. L. Mencken (In Defence of Women).
- (e) How To Be a Success (Author unknown).
- (f) The Black Clock.
- (g) The Alarm Sheep.
- (h) Et caetera, et caetera, ad infinitum.

New Feature . . .

We are firm believers in the fact that professors are essentially human beings. We are more over convinced that professors have a real sense of humor. For that reason we intend to devote a little corner of this column to them every now and then. All our readers are requested to submit for publication here the best examples of professional humor that they have encountered. This corner is not to be considered analogous to the "Bright Sayings of Little Children" contests that are run by certain tabloid magazines and Dailies. The humor must be subtle, and it must be laugh provoking. The acid test that we shall apply to all entries is: For how many successive years have these jokes convulsed students with mirth? Our minimum is set at three. These witticisms must be brief, they must be reasonably obvious. We have no desire to put a strain on anybody's intelligence.

OUR GALLIC NEIGHBOURS

La Sorbonne (Paris)

It might, perhaps interest Canadian students who pass every spring through the throes of variety exams, to read how the same torture is administered to the fifteen thousand odd victims of the famous University of Paris.

First of all we must remember that the State only can confer degrees in France. In somewhat like the University of Montreal system, all "Lycees" (State Colleges) and private institutions send their pupils for two successive years for written tests followed by an oral in each case if the student succeeds in the first test. These examinations are held in the First year Grade and the one year of Philosophy respectively.

The classical course begins with the Sixth year Grade: six years of latin and other subjects, and one year of Philosophy. Seven years altogether, during which periodical examinations are held in the several institutions, and each student has a uniform "carnet scolaire" wherein his marks are registered together with marginal notes by the professors. This booklet has some weight with the Sorbonne examiners, especially at the orals.

The University examinations are held in July. Students are herded arbitrarily together under the respective first letter of their names irrespective of whatever institution they come from. Batches of a few hundred are placed in the State schools (vacated by their regular pupils at this time) and other public buildings. I was at the Lyceum Victor Hugo with a lot of D's, and quite a number felt really d when the returns were in, probably more than half.

An average of 50% is required. If one is successful, he is entitled to the added torture of an oral examination two weeks afterwards. There is an executioner for each torment, latin, mathematics, history, etc. The racking process is in public, and the experience never fades from one's memory! . . . A heavy sunshine adds to the exquisiteness of the situation.

Some of the questions seem treacherous. For instance, I recall the following on Geography:

"What do you know about St-Pierre et Miquelon? If you know as much as I do, you would have answered: 'A popular place with Americans! . . . (at least up to a few weeks ago.)"

The University of Paris receives students from all the world, and all nationalities and races congregate there. The feeble-sex is well represented, and incidentally I may add that female-lawyers are thrown every year into the arena of the famous Palais de Justice. It is quite jolly to see the red-lipped girls, sombrely draped and capped with a peculiar brette . . .

La Revue Bleue Et Or

It is rather late to say a word about the Revue Bleue et Or produced by the Students of the University of Montreal, but as the old saying goes "better late than never!"

Held on Nov. 30 and Dec. 1 last, the Review was a decided success. The audience was very attentive. You could have heard a kiss from the wings, if such an horror he been committed! The Review was composed of many sketches, all of which were of sparkling wit.

Among the most interesting sketches, were: "A Guide's Plotting in Burlesque" (an imaginary circuit through non-existing marvels), "Ghandi Sprites" (a fantastic dance macabre), "Baptiste wants to be famous" (a satire on dictators), "False Alarm" (a stone at the Police), "The March of the Wooden Soldiers" (a tap-dance well executed by pupils of Sheffield's Studio), and lastly a "Mock Trial of Miss Walkerton".

The atmosphere was one of high gaiety. There were several allusions to well-known public men, and several of these were mimicked cleverly.

Oyes! Oyes!

Somewhere in January there will be held another Review similar to this one, though not officially a University Review. It will be played at the Imperial theatre. Details will be given later! C.D.

His Majesty's "Tomorrow And Tomorrow"

"TOMORROW, and tomorrow, and tomorrow creeps in this petty pace from day to day to the last syllable of recorded time." Perhaps the producers of the current vehicle at His Majesty's did not realize how apt were the words of the immortal Bard when applied to the production. The main fault with the production is its slowness of action.

Thoughtful audiences will find an interesting psychological study, however, and what might almost be called a "problem". Philip Barry has based his situation on the old story of Elisha the prophet and the Shunammite; his story of the empty life of a mentally-alert childless middle-west woman, into whose life comes a sympathetic professor of psychology, is a modern parallel. A child is born—the psycholod's—and he returns years later to pull it through a difficult crisis. But he no longer plays a part in the woman's life — he has given her the bond that brings her and her husband closer together.

It is cheering to see the stock company, whose final week this is, at last do a serious work. Barry's play is excellently-constructed, complete with human characters and dialogue which has a charming naturalness peculiar to the author. Throughout all moves Lynn Kendal, the statuesquely beautiful heroine, whose really sincere effort at a part more difficult than any yet entrusted to her proves her very real value to the company. Particularly in the last scenes of the second act and the first of the third she rouses an apathetic audience into a state of excitement. Both Edgar Mason and Walter Vaughn give good readings of the prosaic husband and the psychologist, but the great discrepancy in their ages counts against them: the husband should have been the hale, hearty young man and the doctor the more mature, kindly man. An excellent comedy performance is turned in by Clarence Rock as the secretary. More than once Mr. Rock has stolen the show, notably in "Twentieth Century"; his lazy humour is infectious. "Tomorrow and Tomorrow" will scarcely interest those who expect nothing but speedy low comedy from His Majesty's Players. Others will find it stimulating.

Financial Dilemma

(By David Kogut)

Among numerous contributions received by the Daily on the financial aspects of the depression, is a privately published paper by Mr. David Kogut, of Montreal. Limitations of space prohibit the republication of the whole article, and one of the staff members has condensed the essence of the theme, which follows:

1. People earn money. People are encouraged to be thrifty. People deposit their small surpluses in banks.
2. Banks use these small surpluses in financing production. Banks should not use them for financing production. Banks should realise that productive goods are a glut on the market.
3. The government should step in. The government should force the banks to put the small surpluses into consumption goods. The government should penalise money which lies on deposit more than a few months. The government should depreciate such money by 2% per annum.
4. The people, seeing their idle money depreciating, would take it out and spend it. The people, in this way, would encourage and boom business.

Such men as Joseph Roth, George Kaiser, Eric Remarque, Ludwig Geiger, Arthur Kerr, Martin Bueber and Constantine Breuser, were merely mentioned, with their special characteristics pointed out.

Alternatives Mentioned
The speaker concluded her remarks by alluding to alternatives that these writers may take, now that they find themselves exiled and their works destroyed by the present Nazi regime. It is difficult for them to revert to a stubborn adherence to type at this late stage, especially since there is so little union among the Jews themselves as to the correct type. They may, however, concentrate on Judaism, according to the view of Wasserman when he said that "the last refuge of humanity from the barbarity of nationalism, is Judaism."

D. Denny Addressed Miners Last Night

Denny said, as shown by exports, is mining, especially that of nitrates and copper. The nitrate industry has decreased considerably since the war owing to synthetic methods developed in Germany.

Copper mining was first carried out by the Indians and to some extent by Spanish invaders. The copper was obtained from the oxidized ores by open pit methods. In 1834 these deposits ran out and an Englishman, Lambert developed methods of refining the sulphide ores. In 1908 the output of copper suffered a severe decline due to the opening of the nitrate working and the exhaustion of the mines. However, with foreign capital, a vast output was made possible in new mines at low production costs.

The method used in these working is block under-cutting.

Committee Complete Prom Preparations

has just recently completed a tour of the R.K.O. circuit and there is no doubt they will be a source of pleasure for the Prom revellers.

Elaborate Decorations

The Prom Committee have stated that the decorations for the occasion are to be both elaborate and original. One end of the dance floor will be adorned with a large Champagne Glass. In keeping with the true collegiate spirit of the Prom the walls will be decorated with the names of the different faculties. Shortly after midnight the dancers will be refreshed with a supper comprising many appetising dishes for the enjoyment of all.

Tickets for the Junior Prom are now on sale in the Arts Building from Bill Gentlemen, in the Engineering Building from Harry Grimsdale, and at the Tuck Shop from Bert Yates. The price of the tickets is five dollars per couple.

The Prom Committee is composed of the following:—

Chairman, Clarence Quinlan; Secretary, John Sprinkle; R.V.C., Helen Stewart; M.S.P.E., Joyce Lewis; Engineering, Bob Costello; Dentistry, John Van Vleet; Arts, Ralph Allen; Commerce, John Gibbon; Medicine, C. W. Hartsough.

Picobac Tobacco NOW 10¢ HURRAY!

"Gentlemen—because so many of my fellow Canadians are smoking Picobac, it has become the largest selling burley tobacco in Canada—and because of its great popularity you benefit. You can now buy Picobac for 10¢ and get still more tobacco for your money."

"I urge every pipe smoker to buy one of the handy pocket tins of Picobac and get acquainted with a tobacco that's friendlier, more sociable in a pipe. As a matter of fact, you'll hardly recognize the old pipe once it's loaded with Picobac, lighted and drawing well. Sweet? You bet! Mild? You can smoke it hour after hour and never get fed up. Cool? You'd travel a thousand miles and never find a mellower, cooler smoke."

Picobac is the pick of Canada's Burley crop, grown in many southern Ontario . . . always cool . . . mild and sweet in your pipe. Good for making cigarettes, too.

—and don't forget, you get more tobacco for your money.

McGill-St. Francois Tilt Features Group Doubleheader

Redmen Seek To Fortify Top Position For Holiday

Tonight's Contest Last Group Appearance For McGill Until Jan. 10 — Vics And Lafontaine Meet In Second Game — Hollie McHugh Leading Goaler In League — Scored On But Three Times In Four Games

DR. BOBBY BELL'S Redmen and St. Francois Xavier renew their feud tonight at the Forum in the first game of the twin bill which will mark McGill's last appearance in Senior Group fixtures until after Christmas. This clash will be the feature attraction of the card, with the lowly Vics and Lafontaine meeting in the second match. Vics have just returned from a highly successful tour in the United States, during which they scored three handy victories and will endeavour to improve their cellar position at the expense of the rapidly improving Lafontaine six.

Redmen Need Win
Tonight's game will be McGill's last chance to fortify their lead so that they will be able to remain well in the running during their long lay-off from Senior Group activities. They do not swing into action again in Ken Stewart's loop until January 10th when they meet Vics and if they can add three points to their total tonight they will be in a strong position.

In addition there is a little matter of a 1-1 tie in their last meeting with the "Saints" to be settled. Hughie Farquharson's tally in the de-lin-moments of their last tilt on a goal-mouth face-off still rangles in the hearts of the French squad as they had as good as won the game when "Farquie" scored the tying counter and their supporters will be on hand tonight intent on seeing McGill beaten. St. Francois' supporters are a force to be contended with and excitement is always high when they are on hand.

"Farquie" on the job
McGill, on the other hand, hope to show the Frenchmen that they really deserve the high rating they have been given. They have had things pretty much their own way so far, though Dame Fortune has cast her fickle smile in their direction on two occasions to save the day for them. Hughie Farquharson has been the one to back in Fortune's beam on both occasions, the first when he tied up the St. Francois encounter and then again when he pulled the Lafontaine game out of the fire last week.

Defensively the Redmen have an outstanding record. Hollie McHugh is setting the pace in goal tending circles with only three goals chalked up against him in four games. McHugh has been playing consistently good hockey between the posts, ably supported by a nifty rear-guard that plays no favorites when they hand out the body checks and a set of back-checking forwards who are always on the job. Meiklejohn, Hall and Elie get a wide berth from incoming forwards now, particularly Meiklejohn who packs the hardest check in the circuit.

Farmer Leads McGill
Kenny Farmer is still leading the Red scorers, his seven-point total putting him in a tie for fourth place in the group records. Hughie Farquharson leads the Redmen in actual goals scored, having bagged five so far while Farmer has but four to his credit. Bourcier, Verdun, Gaudette, of Canadens, and St. Germain of Royals will be idle tonight and the Red aces will have a chance to improve their positions without serious competition. Watson of St. Francois is the only one of his squad who has been able to get very far and has garnered six points so far. Nelson Crutchfield has not yet done any scoring but his four assists prove he has not been wasting his time. The big fellow is about due to come through with a goal or two.

SWORDSMEN PLAN TO MEET NORWICH

Will Probably Engage Soldiers Shortly After Vacation

COACH RAIMONDI'S fencing club have been carrying on negotiations with the swordsmen from Norwich University about the possibility of a meeting in the near future. Nothing definite has been decided to date, but it is probable that the military men will visit McGill sometime after Christmas for an exhibition meeting in the fall and the epee.
Last year's visit resulted in a McGill victory by a small margin. The fells were all McGill's, but the sabre fell to the soldiers. It is probable that the McGill unit will be chosen from the following men: Wiggers, de Montigny, Fabbro, Perrault, Rivard and Hendrick. Providing that the military men send down a sufficient number of contestants several of the novices will be selected to compete along with the above-mentioned.

Boxers Participate In Exhibition Bouts

TWO bouts between McDonald College and McGill scrappers and an exhibition tussle between the respective boxing coaches are the features of the annual McDonald College Smoker tonight. Red McLennan in the 175 lb. category and Lionel Swift fighting at the 145 lb. weight are the McGill representatives on this occasion while Waterfield and O'Brien constitute their opposition. Bert Light has promised to take on the St. Anne mentor during the evening's program, a bout that should prove quite interesting to the spectators. 8.00 p.m. is the scheduled time for the bouts.
The fighters mentioned are reminded that the train leaves Windsor Station at 6.15 p.m.

Gordon Johnson Now Playing On Oxford Ice Team

Former McGill Hockey Player Is Mainstay Of Squad

GORDON H. JOHNSON, who graduated from McGill in Arts '32 and who was for several years a member of the senior intercollegiate hockey squad is another former McGill student who is making a name for himself in England. Johnson is now attending Oxford University where Munroe Bourne, noted swimming and track star is also in attendance.

Playing for Wadham College, Johnson has become the mainstay of his team and is one of the most popular players on the Dark Blue outfit. The Oxford team is entered in the First Division League and last year were champions of the Ice Hockey League and until this year they had gone undefeated for two seasons until they suffered a surprise defeat by Streatham, newcomers to the First Division.

Consistent Scorer
Johnson has been a consistent scorer for his team and his fine play has merited him consideration for selection on England's team which is playing international contests this winter. The English international team will meet France and Canada in a series of matches. A large number of the prominent English players are former Canadians, with the Grosvenor House Canadians boasting a strong aggregation. Frank Leblanc, former centre of the Moncton Hawks, Dominion Champions, is playing with Queen's and is considered an almost certain selection for the international team.

Both Cage Quintettes Play Exhibitions Tonight

Intercollegiate And Intermediates Brush Up Against N.D.G. Squads At Community Hall — Opening Match At 8:00 P.M. — Both Senior Squads Are Championship Holders — Red Teams Face Y.M.H.A. Cagers This Saturday — Post-Holiday Exhibition Affairs Arranged

MCGILL INTERCOLLEGIATES and N.D.G. Red Jackets, each a champion in their own right on basketball fronts, stage an exhibition encounter tonight which should provide an interesting display to cage fans. The McGill squad, champions of the Intercollegiate Union and the Community lads, who bear the imposing title of pennant-holders of Quebec, the Maritimes and Ottawa Valley, have not met since last Spring when they battled for city championship laurels. At that time the Redmen collected a victory. Tonight their opponents will be keen to retaliate for that defeat of last season as well as line themselves up as potential city champs for this year. The Red intermediates clash with the Community seconds in the opener of the evening starting at 8.00 p.m. Both matches are scheduled to take place at the N. D. G. Community gymnasium.

Same Line-up
Coach Van Wagner will line up the same assortment which jousted against the Vermont cagers last Saturday, with one addition. Silverman, who was unable to make the trip to the Yankee quarters will return to his position at guard to strengthen the regular defence line of Ross and Bowes. Reed Lewin at centre with Faulkner and Small flanking him as forwards will carry out the front rank duties. Huff and Bowes will relieve the forwards.

The intermediate conflict will be the second exhibition fray for the Redmen this season, their first last Friday against Central Y intermediate 'B' cagers having resulted in a 17-14 triumph for the collegiates. Condit and Levites will alternate at centre position for this match; Conklin and Greenblatt will round out the forward line with Corrigan and Boyd as guards. Wilson and Scriver will substitute as forwards and Jeffrey and McMorran on the defence.

Poloists Preparing For Deciding Game

Travel To Toronto This Saturday For Final Engagement

LOCAL TILT TOMORROW

NOT content with resting on the laurels gained in the opening match of the intercollegiate series, the concluding game of which will be played this Saturday in Toronto, Coach Vickerson is driving his senior poloists through the toughest workout schedules of the year in his preparations for the invasion of the Queen City.

Tomorrow evening both squads engaged in their final local contests of the season, taking on Columbus seniors and juniors on this occasion. This will not only provide the last city league game for the Red seniors but will likewise constitute their final polo activities before the deciding intercollegiate fracas.

McGill Held Edge
Although the McGill crew clearly held the edge throughout last Saturday's conflict with the Blueboys, the Varsity lads are expected to more than hold their own in the coming tussle. Playing in their familiar home quarters and with a full quota of student support, the Blueboys will naturally be out to extend themselves to the limit in the attempt to retain the title which they have held for the last two years. Two goals is a mighty slim margin to hold, especially in a strange tank and under slightly altered rulings.

It might be mentioned in this last regard that the Varsity team operates in its own local league under rulings which differ to a slight extent from those to which the Red men are accustomed, and in Saturday's engagement the Blue team conformed to the rulings generally accepted by the Redmen. This Saturday however they must follow the regulations which are familiar to their rivals, and although this does not constitute any great disadvantage since Coach Vickerson has been drilling his charges under these conditions, it may be one of the factors deciding the championship. The two goal margin now held by the Redmen may be considered as just about enough to offset any advantages held by the Toronto crew from point of view of the conditions already mentioned.

Practice Today
This afternoon a further workout is scheduled for the intercollegiate squad. The juniors too are expected to be on hand to provide the opposition for their senior mates as well as to round out their final conditioning manoeuvres for their closing league engagement tomorrow night.

Intermediate Puck Squad Selection To Be Decided Today

TODAY'S hockey practice at the Forum has been restricted to intermediates and all those who have been trying out for the team should be on hand as the team will be selected today. Application has been made to the Athletic Board for permission to enter a team in the Mount Royal Intermediate "B" League and it is expected that the first game will take place next Monday night.

The Intermediate "B" loop operates on Monday nights in the Mount Royal Arena and will, in all probability, comprise five teams. In addition to McGill there will be entries from Montreal West, Notre Dame De Grace St. Lambert and Holy Name.

Defence Looks Good
Carl Jodick, manager of the intermediates, has plenty of material on hand and expects to be able to trot out a smart aggregation when the time comes. His squad has been practising twice a week at the Forum and should be in good shape as they have had considerable time on the ice. Charlie Letourneau and Fred Wigle look like fixtures on the defence with Hugh Doherty and several others to choose from for the reserve defensive posts. Dave Tennant and Russ Wilson have been working hard in the cage and just who will get the call is still uncertain.

A wealth of material is available for the forward positions and little difficulty should be experienced in picking out a couple of capable front lines.

Boxers Attention

Red McLennan and Lionel Swift are requested to take note of the fact that transportation to McDonald College will be by train, leaving Windsor Station at 6:15 p.m.

Since then this system has been adopted more and more.
The selection of the proper man for the job is of major importance to an industry. If the job does not suit the man, he may leave it and time and money will be lost in training his successor. Moreover, individuals unsuited to their jobs are prone to accidents.

Various Systems
There are various systems of testing an applicant for a position; for instance, authorities state that salesmen in a store must have a certain order of intelligence to be efficient, but that the utility of an exceptionally intelligent man is doubtful. Also salesmen from the ages of twenty-two to twenty-four are best. Those older and younger are not so good. Twelve or more years of education are advantageous, and they should be married, carry insurance, and belong to clubs.
It has been proved that over ninety per cent of all factory accidents are due to human failings. The Workman's Compensation Act has shown the employers the necessity of preventive action, and their investigations show that old men are less liable to accident than young ones, and that most accidents are due to bad physical condition, fatigue, fast production change or more than ten degrees in the room temperature, and perhaps most important of all, monotony.
Dr. Morton concluded that Industrial Psychology has already improved the lot of both employer and employee greatly, but has still far to go toward a millennium.

Student in the European Crisis." He dealt particularly with the relation of the student to the part he played in various political national movements such as Fascism and Hitlerism, and touched briefly upon the menace of war in Europe in the near future.

Students in Germany, said Mr. Lewis, present a painful example of the gullibility of the species. They succumb to Hitler's high-sounding phrases and are firm Fascists. Even three years ago eighty per cent of the students of Germany were pro-Hitler.

Students Bad

"What is this animal called student?" asked Mr. Lewis. Students in general, he said, were a bad lot. "They are careerists of the worst possible type, going to university in exactly the same spirit as an apprentice to a cobler's shop. The two reasons students attend university are that they have to and that it is a great thing to go. They are all alike, whether they attend Oxford or Cambridge, McGill, Yale, or any university.

Students should try to see what they are, what their relation is to the world and in world affairs, and take an intelligent interest in government and society.

Great Despair

The present situation in Europe is one of extreme suffering and despair. The war dealt a death-blow to the economic system that had been so carefully and painfully built up from the Industrial Revolution and its foundation, once thought so secure, are slipping and shifting. Experiments in Government are feverishly attempted and then discarded. Fascism is merely the last attempt of a breaking capitalist system to maintain its hold on the people it has formerly exploited.

How can a person succumb to such makeshift as that? A desperate man despairing of employment or a decent living will succumb to anything. Fascism seems convincing because of the flare and ceremony that go with it. It is said to be a movement of the middle classes; that confers inestimable benefits on both the middle and lower classes. In Germany Hitler promised to ease the lot of the peasant, but is only adding to his burden by imposing new taxes and regulations. Jews in Germany, if they were rich enough, were not harmed. The real supporters of the Fascist movement in Germany were not the working classes, but the industrialists, the financiers, and the Junkers, or landowners.
It is no exaggeration to say that there is hardly a person who doubts that another war is coming, that it is a certainty. The nature of the next war will be infinitely terrible. The chapter on bacteriological and chemical warfare in "The Nature of the Next War" states that in twenty-four hours the population of London can be wiped out. Education and research have brought this shadow over society. Students can wield tremendous power for good or evil.

Opening Performance Of "Rope" Tomorrow Night

thrills and suspense in store for all. No one should miss this play.

A brisk dress rehearsal went off without a hitch last night, with the actors going through their parts with smoothness and precision, reproducing the tense atmosphere almost to perfection. It is reported, Ticket sales have been going satisfactorily, and the results are quite encouraging, the executive states.

Scenery Effective

The scenery is in harmony with the motif of the play, and is highly effective. Modernistic in tone, there is an apartment interior that is designed to convey the impression of modest luxury.

Built around the murder of Ronald Kentley, whose body has been concealed in a chest, there is a series of breath-taking incidents. Brandon and Granilo have murdered this college mate of theirs, and placed his body in a large chest in their apartment. They have attempted to commit a passionless, motiveless and clueless murder, and to show their infallibility have invited some friends and relatives of the victim to have lunch from the very chest in which the body lies.
The cast is as follows:
Rupert Cadell Thornton Grier
Brandon Ronald Leatham
Granilo Lawrence MacGregor
Raglan Carl Wiele
Sir Johnstone Kentley Heward Stikeman
Lella Arden Marjory Fyfer
Mrs. Debenham Charlotte Bowman
Sabot Jean Dupuis

Poetry Inadequate For Present Need

St. James' Literary Club Holds Debate On Poetic Value

"Resolved that the study of the English poets fits a man to cope with the problems of modern life" was the subject under discussion at the St. James' Literary Society last night at 8.15. Mr. Bonar was in the chair and introduced the speakers: for the affirmative, Mr. M. C. Beck, and Mr. Edward La Pierre, B.A., for the negative.

Mr. Beck began by saying that man was always looking and pressing forward into the future to a time when world conditions should be better. The way for the future had been opened up, he said, by the poets, who through their keenness of vision had shown us better than we could have shown ourselves what it is that we really desire. By their spiritual insight and perceptivity they had held up before our eyes the goal towards which it was ever our duty to strive.

In speaking for the negative Mr. La Pierre defined first of all the meaning of the words 'study' and 'fits' and the phrase 'problems of modern life.' Study he defined as concentration with the purpose of acquiring detailed knowledge. This, he said, could only be accomplished at the exclusion of other studies. Further to study one subject to the exclusion of others tended to produce in one a definite mentality. Mr. La Pierre contended that the study of poetry tended to develop the emotional side of man's nature at the expense of his intellectual abilities. A study having this effect was obviously not the best thing with a view to tackling modern problems.

The mentality of the poet, said the speaker, tended to excesses in three lines: excessive emotionalism, excessive subjectivism, and excessive individualism; factor in life which were not desirous from a social standpoint. Romanticism was the type of poetry most studied, and this unfortunately developed an emotional and sentimental viewpoint when what was needed more than anything else to cope with modern problems was a sound, healthy, masculine intelligence to bear on the problems at hand.

The audience decided in favour of the speaker for the negative.

Students Abolish Executive Council

Knoxville, Tenn. — Disgusted with all the petty political combings on the campus, Vanderbilt students in a recent mass meeting voted to abolish the student council of the university. At the same time they also voted to do away with all class offices except the presidencies of the senior and junior classes.

Student affairs are to be conducted henceforth by a "student governing board," to be composed of one representative from each fraternity, sorority, non-Greek letter organization, the schools of law and religion, and one man and one woman not members of any campus society.

The worm's turning came as a result of many years of unsatisfactory politics on the Vanderbilt campus. Students were elected to important offices without any regard for their ability. The elections were, as one observer expressed it, only "popularity contests."

The Vanderbilt coup is not unique. Many other universities have come to believe that student elections and politics are not worth the time and trouble they require, and that any "political training" they may furnish is usually actually harmful.

At the University of Kentucky the entire editors of the various student publications were elected by popular vote of the student body, but the results were so poor that the practice has been recently discontinued. The editors are now chosen by a special board of publications, as at this university.

There is a noticeable tendency in American colleges to transform the student governments into bodies of service, not honor. This almost necessarily obviates elections. Some schools use a control board composed of important campus leaders who are, by virtue of their positions, ex-officio members of the board. Even under this plan petty politics, while greatly abated, still exist.
